Greenfield Advisors Welcomes New Team Member

Seattle, WA, October 23, 2008— Greenfield Advisors LLC, a company specializing in complex real estate valuation and advisory services, recently hired Andy Krause as their newest Analyst. Mr. Krause is a graduate in Planning from the University of Arizona. While working towards his graduate degree, he utilized econometric modeling to study the economics of historic preservation in Tucson, AZ. He specializes in spatial statistics and large-scale litigation cases.

“We are excited to have Mr. Krause join our team of analysts,” said John Kilpatrick, owner of Greenfield Advisors.

Mr. Krause is the co-author of “Contaminated Properties, Trespass, and Underground Rents,” a paper co-authored with Ron Throupe, Ph.D., John Kilpatrick, Ph.D., and Will Spiess, MBA as well as “Valuation of Impaired Property” which appears in When Bad Things Happen to Good Property (Environmental Law Institute, 2007).
